ROUND-THE-CLOCK AIR OFFENSIVE ON EUROPE ROARS INTO 7TH DAY; TARGETS IN ITALY SMASHED; ALL FRONTS ACTIVE

Swarms of "Warbirds" Return to Bases and Are Followed By Others Pounding Objectives—Shangri-La for Tokio Raid Revealed As An Aircraft Carrier

By International News Service
The round-the-clock air offensive against Hitler's European Fortress roared into its seventh day today as giant RAF bombers smashed at targets in Italy. Hardly had the British warbirds returned to base than swarms of other planes crossed the straits toward France for renewed blows against Axis targets on the continent.
The RAF's latest mass raid Italian target was not immediately disclosed. The raid climaxed a busy day for the Allied airmen on all fronts, more than 400 British bombers and fighters having attacked enemy shipping, airfields and other objectives in cross-channel raids alone.
From North Africa, where the Allies made full use of their overwhelming air superiority by pounding enemy bases and concentrations preparatory to the final battle of Tunisia, came the disclosure that an aircraft carrier was the Shangri-La from which American planes bombed Tokyo a year ago.
Other details of the raid on Japanese cities by Major General Jimmy Doolittle's Billy Mitchell bombers remained secret, but it was revealed that some of the fliers who participated

10 CANDIDATES RECEIVE DEGREES FROM GRANGE

Four Are From Edgewood Grange and Six From The Middletown Organization
MEETING IN LANGHORNE

LANGHORNE, Apr. 19.—First and second degrees were conferred on 10 candidates at a meeting of Middletown Grange on Wednesday evening. Four were from Edgewood Grange and six from the hostess grange. The session took place in the Memorial House.

Herman Heston, master of the Grange, who headed the degree team, was assisted by Past Master Henry C. Pickering.

Announcement was made that the third and fourth degrees will be conferred at a meeting of the Edgewood Grange in the near future.

The organization decided to purchase another defense bond.

Men and women of the Grange have been conducting an attendance contest during the past six meetings, and the men were the losers. As a result, they will be called upon to furnish the program at the next meeting which will be held in the memorial house on April 28th. Dr. H. C. Terry will be in charge of the program.

William DeCou, a member of the Edgewood Grange, spoke of the work camp to be established at George School next summer, and announced that students of high school age are now available to assist the farmers with their work. He suggested that all farmers interested apply for assistance at George School.

Jews To Celebrate Passover Starting Tonight

Memories of freedom won after years of slavery in Egypt will bring home to Jews throughout the saddened world as they recite the Seder Service which ushers in the holiday of the Passover this evening.

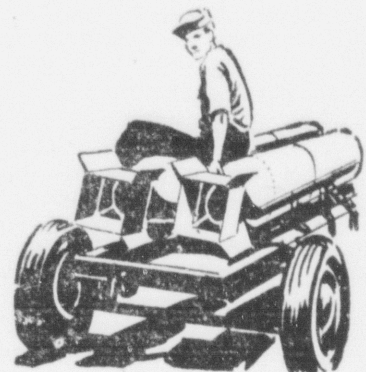

Passover, which commemorates the deliverance of the Jews from the oppression of the Pharaohs and their entrance into the Promised Land, is the oldest holiday in the Jewish calendar. Originating as a spring festival it developed a religious significance during the days of the Temple.

When Jerusalem was the religious center of Judaism, the Passover was celebrated in the Temple. It was one of the three pilgrim festivals, and people came from all parts of Palestine to share in the holiday which marked the sowing of the crops. Since the destruction of the Temple, Passover has become a home festival.

U. S. Army Needs Surgical Dressings; Aid is Asked

Bristol Red Cross cannot reach its quota of surgical dressings unless more individuals volunteer to assist. This is the message from the surgical dressing class today.

A strong plea is made for workers for tomorrow and Wednesday and for both of those days in each of the weeks to follow.

Workers, with or without experience, may assist at the community house, Cedar and Dorrance streets, between 10 a. m. and four p. m., each Tuesday and Wednesday, or on Tuesday evening between 7.30 and 9.30 p. m. If any cannot be present for full periods, they are welcome to assist for an hour or two.

The Red Cross is delivering four million surgical dressings daily to the U. S. Army. For eight of the types needed the army has to depend largely on the Red Cross, and other types of dressings which can be made by mechanical means are provided by commercial firms.

"Be a volunteer tomorrow" is the plea of those in charge. "Come to the community house for as long a period as you can spare, and give aid where it is so sorely needed."

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Simple Explanation

THIS WAS the President's idea at the start. When opposition developed he backtracked on it. Finally, he returned to his first position and the main purpose of the conference as now arranged under his orders is to carry out this idea. That seems an extraordinary statement, but there is foundation for it. Except as a precedent, the handicaps placed on the newspapers in this instance are not very important, but as a precedent they are very important. No such calculated effort to suppress legitimate news and interfere with the freedom of the press, without even the semblance of a military reason, has ever been made in America by a public official. Nearly all of Mr. Roosevelt's better balanced friends regard it as bad judgment on his part. Even the righteous Mr. Elmer Davis opposed it. The reaction in Congress and in the country is bad, and the Republicans are certain to use it as an issue later on. In the end, it will prove to have been worse than futile. That is the feeling in circles surprisingly close to the White House.

IN FACE of all this, it is natural to ask what is behind these Roosevelt

CAMPAIGNS IN PLANTS

Campaign Was Postponed To Await Completion of Red Cross Drive

The annual campaign for funds for the Salvation Army, which usually begins on April 1st, and which was deferred this year awaiting conclusion of the Red Cross campaign, is now getting underway.

One of the features of the campaign in Bristol will be conducting of a house-to-house canvass by Girl Reserves of Bristol high school under direction of Miss Marion E. Peck, a member of the faculty. This house-to-house canvass in Bristol will be made tomorrow. The girls are prepared to identify themselves as "Army" representatives.

One individual was baptized, and three admitted to membership in Bristol Methodist Church. William Wilbur Grimes was baptized, and he and Elmer Pillsbury and Elwood Patalone were welcomed into church fellowship. The Rev. W. E. Preston Haas, pastor, was in charge of the ceremonies.

Much Food Destroyed By Fire in Trenton Market

TRENTON, N. J., April 19.—(INS)—Thousands of dollars worth of food lay in ruins today, following a three-alarm blaze which swept through three storages of the State Food Store Market in Trenton.

Merchandise stored on the fourth floor of the building by a furniture firm was also damaged by flames, and smoke rendered stock in nearby stores almost worthless. Scores of fire-fighters narrowly escaped injury when the roof of the building suddenly collapsed.

SHIP SLACKERS FINED

The men punched the timeclock in the morning, took an eight-hour recess, and returned in the evenings to punch themselves out.

MARINE WEDS BRISTOL GIRL; CEREMONY HERE

Miss Marian E. Bolton Becomes Bride of Pvt. William A. Moyer, Jr.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

An early spring wedding solemnized here on Saturday evening united Miss Marian Elaine Bolton, Washington street, and Pvt. William A. Moyer, Jr., of the U. S. Marine Corps, who is stationed at Quantico, Va.

The Rev. James R. Gailey performed the ceremony at seven o'clock in Bristol Presbyterian Church, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. Music for the occasion was provided by Mrs. Mervyn D. Weagley, organist; and Miss June McLaughlin, Beaver street, vocalist, whose offerings were "Because" and "O Promise Me."

The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bolton, 336 Washington street, was given in marriage by her father. Pvt. Moyer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Moyer, of Torresdale.

Two young women attended the bride, they being Miss Norma Chambers, Washington street, maid of honor; and Miss Eunice McVaine, Cedar street, bridesmaid.

The best man was Pvt. James L. Bolton, of the U. S. Marine Corps, Paris Island, S. C., a brother of the bride.

White satin was chosen by the bride for the ceremony, the floor-length costume, entrain, having panels of lace at the front of the skirt. The yoke was fashioned of lace, and leg-of-mutton sleeves ended in points over the hands. She wore a beaded tiara which held a long net veil edged in lace. The face veil was also lace-edged. Slippers were of white satin, and the bouquet carried by the former Miss Bolton was composed of orchids and white roses, it having a shower of white sweet-peas.

The bride's attendants wore gowns fashioned alike. Miss Chambers was attired in orchid and Miss McVaine in peach. The gowns of net were floor length, and featured lace yokes. Sleeves were short, and velvet bows were used as trim on the skirts. Their long lace mitts and their floral head-dresses matched the individual gowns, as did face veils of net. Slippers were of silver. Miss Chambers carried yellow roses and Miss McVaine had a bouquet of talisman roses.

The mothers of the bride and groom were costumed in navy blue ensembles and wore white accessories. Mrs. Bolton wore a corsage of white roses, and Mrs. Moyer's corsage was of red roses.

A reception followed at the Bolton residence. For a week-end honeymoon trip to New York City the bride wore a yellow dress, brown coat, yellow hat, and brown accessories. Her corsage was of orchids. Mrs. Moyer will reside with her parents for the duration of the war.

More homes for war workers—400 units—are to be erected on the outskirts of Bristol borough.

The cost of the total project, including the cost of the land, is listed as exceeding one million dollars.

The houses are to be erected on plots purchased from three owners, the site of the plots being described by John Taylor Egan, New York, director of Region 2, Federal Public Housing Authority, as "being on Beaver Dam Road, opposite the Bristol Terrace housing project which was completed some months ago." The plot acquired is 31.7 acres.

The group houses are to be of temporary construction, it is announced, the units having masonry walls.

They will be of the following sizes: Ten percent with no bedrooms, these being dormitory or two-person dwellings; thirty percent with one bedroom; forty percent with two bedrooms; and twenty percent with three bedrooms.

There will also be erected a community building with child service facilities for what is described as "child care."

In addition to the bedrooms the units will include kitchen-dinets and living rooms. There will be bath facilities, but these will consist of showers instead of tubs.

Units will be of one-story construction. "There are usually four to six units to structures of this type," it is announced today.

Edward Wigham and George Daub, Philadelphia, are the architects. This is the same project which was announced in the Courier last Monday

WHAT'S COOKING

John Erskine offers timely advice to the American people in an article in the April Gourmet. He starts out with the theory, probably correct, that the reason Americans devote so little attention to the art of cooking is because the United States was formerly a land of plenty. Americans formerly had such a variety of food-stuffs from which to choose that they were never called upon to mix art with plain cooking.

Recalling his experiences in France in the last war, Mr. Erskine says:

"War, anyway you look at it, is hell. I recall a battalion of grand youngsters in the last war, taking over a sector to relieve the French. As soldiers they had had only a few months' training, but they gave a handsome account of themselves. That is, as soldiers. When it came to cooking and eating, they supplied the poisons with something to talk about, the French army being full of chefs, professional or amateur. Our army had learned the science of arms, overnight. We ate as we fought, with courage. The tin plates could and did hold all at the same time, a slab of meat buried in gravy, a miscellany of vegetables, a biscuit and a wedge of pie."

From this humiliating situation Mr. Erskine was rescued by a French journalist who learned cooking the hard but efficient way. He had been one of a poor family of five children. When his mother went to work in the morning she told him to prepare lunch for his brothers and sisters and to get supper ready for her in the evening. A good cook is the result of necessity, Mr. Erskine thinks. With little to work with, he avoids monotony and despair by means of seasoning and experiment.

Mr. Erskine's French journalist found a wood-burning stove and night after night, with semi-miraculous skill, fed a group of comrades meals so appetizing that they are still good to remember, in spite of the fact that the raw materials were the same as those which called for heroism when cooked by American cooks.

Mr. Erskine implies—and he is right—that necessity is now about to challenge the housewives of America. No skill is required to boil an ear of corn which nature has already seasoned. Real triumph for the cook comes when he or she can take an inferior cut of meat or a group of uninspiring vegetables and make therefrom something to delight the heart of the dinner guest who cannot always be expected to bring along his coupons to increase the variety of the fare.

Mr. Erskine has thrown his challenge in the right direction. American cooks may be expected to rise to the rationing situation as they have risen to other situations in the past.

Few persons ever expected to see the day when there would be more money than meat.

The butcher and baker are now under federal control, and the candlestick maker faces a shortage of tallow.

An Old Timer is one who can remember when Americans sat around and sympathized with the British people because their supplies were rationed and they couldn't lay food unless they complied with numerous regulations.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol July 14, 1881. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

Nearly 5,000 baskets of corn were shipped to Philadelphia by the Columbia on Monday morning from Burlington and Beverly. Because of the delay caused in loading this freight the boat did not reach the city until 10 o'clock. The Gem passed the Columbia while she was taking on the freight, but before Philadelphia was reached the Gem was left far behind.

The Spiritualist camp meeting at Neshaminy Falls Grove will open tomorrow and continue until August 15th. If the present weather continues the Spirits will have a warm time.

The Gem is to be taken off her present route soon, probably in August, as she does not pay expenses.

Quite suddenly, but not unexpectedly, Joseph T. Kinsey, who is widely known in the community, died at his residence on Mill street yesterday morning. Mr. Kinsey belonged to a branch of the old family of the same name who nearly ever since the first settlement of our borough have been conspicuous in its annals.

The regular meeting of the borough council was held on Monday evening, all the members being present except Mr. Scheide.

The street committee reported that they estimated the cost of paving the streets ten inches deep with the best Neshaminy gravel at $700 for 800 feet.

The fire committee reported in favor of an appropriation of $1,064 for the purpose of paying expense of tubes for the steam engine and new hose for Fire Company No. 1.

In reference to repairing board walk on the Beaver Dam Road, the street committee was instructed to have it done in the way they thought best.

(Following items culled from Issue of The Bucks County Gazette of July 21, 1881.)

Now is the time for cheap travel westward. The rates of fare from New York to Cincinnati is $8, to Chicago, $10. It is expected that the rate will be down tomorrow to $5 to Cincinnati.

Joseph S. Peirce received 125,000 brick at the Walnut street wharf last week.

The Bristol Keg Factory, operated by Messrs. Wood and Killenger, has been removed to Bedford, Pa.

Samuel C. Smiley, son of Milton T. Smiley, has been appointed a cadet at West Point from George M. Robeson's district, N. J. There were over 40 applicants for the place, but in the examination Samuel outdistanced his competitors, and received the appointment.

A. H. Fracker, formerly superintendent of the North Penn road, has been appointed superintendent of the Pacific Coast railroad, California.

The Rev. Henry F. Lee, formerly of Bristol, and now moral instructor at the House of Correction, preached at the Presbyterian Church at Torredale, last Sabbath.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

Definitely establishing a new star in the cinema firmament, "Tennessee

Johnson" opened last night at the Grand Theatre.

The newcomer to the stellar ranks is Van Heflin, previously seen in "Johnny Eager," "Kid Glove Killer" and "Seven Sweethearts." In all of which he had what amounted to secondary roles. In "Tennessee Johnson" he is the star by virtue not only of his role but of the above-criticism manner of his enactment.

For his first venture in the realms of stardom, the studio presented Van Heflin with a role that would have tested the abilities of any of Hollywood's roster of veteran screen players.

BRISTOL THEATRE

The newest in the Aldrich Family movie series, "Henry Aldrich, Editor," is now at the Bristol Theatre with Jimmy Lydon cast as Henry, Charles Smith as Dizzy, Rita Quigley as Henry's girl friend, John Littel and Olive Blakeney as the much-troubled Mr. and Mrs. Aldrich, and Vaughan Glaser in the role of Centerville High School's harassed Principal.

RITZ THEATRE

Whenever John Wayne overhears the dog-eared old Hollywood saw about film success a matter of mere luck, he indulges in a good, hearty guffaw at the expense of his gullible informant.

For it took ten years for Wayne to become a star.

His newest is "Flying Tigers," epic of the achievements of the American Volunteer Group in Burma, which will play at the Ritz Theatre tonight.

veit orders. The suggestions that he is irritated with the press; that the taste he had at Casablanca of being able to dictate what should go in the newspapers was so pleasant that he wants to do it all the time; that he thinks, if unrestricted in reporting the conference, the reporters might play one nation against the other and thus make up by cottages and back again."

"I don't know," he said doubtfully, "but she was acting awful peculiar about hair ever."

Struck by the recollection he threw back his oilskins and felt in the pocket of his flannel shirt. He brought out the folded paper he had purloined from Elaine's room, and started to put on his spectacles.

I snatched the paper from him. "Look! The holes in one side! It's been torn from a loose-leaf notebook—Mrs. Delmar's! There's a clipping pasted on it!"

He stared at each other, then leaped from our chairs with one accord and rushed to hold the paper under the oil lamp.

Across the top of the page, one of the Delmars, presumably, had written: The Case of Polly Morgan.

But our gaze was centered on the picture accompanying the printed article, a newspaper cut of what was obviously a snapshot, not very clear. A young woman was standing on a tennis court, racket in hand, a sturdy, rather plump figure. Her eyes were squinted against the sun, and her blonde hair was drawn up on top of her head in a chignon of curls.

"She not look much like Elaine," Komako said.

"No, except that she's blonde. The doctor told us Elaine's clothes, when they found her, didn't fit because she'd got so thin. Nothing changes people like flesh or the lack of it."

"But Elaine was fixing her like that—and scared. Let's see who is Polly Morgan."

As I write these words I do not have the clipping in my possession, so I cannot quote it verbatim. But the story summed up to this:

In 1929 Polly Morgan killed a man named Frederick P. Hawks in her suite at a luxurious hotel in Chicago, and vanished before an arrest could be made. All the authorities had was the chambermaid's story: The maid, on the night of the murder, was in the bedroom of Polly's suite turning down the bed, when the hall door into the adjoining sitting room burst open and Polly Morgan rushed in, followed by Hawks. They were quarreling and continued to quarrel, obviously unaware of the maid's presence. The maid hurried to finish her task, meaning to slip into the hall by way of the bedroom door. The next thing she knew, the two in the sitting room were locked in a death struggle. Polly had a knife. Hawks tried to wrest it from her, then whipped a small revolver from his pocket. Polly sank the knife between his shoulder blades just as the gun went off. The maid fainted. When she recovered, she was alone—except for the body of Hawks on the sitting room floor. Polly was gone. No trace of her had ever been found. There was also a résumé of Polly's life—a singer in night clubs, a favorite guest at swank bachelor parties, that sort of thing.

ence convened to find this out. Undoubtedly, publication of it would be embarrassing to the Administration, but as it concerns a post-war situation and the civilian populations, it certainly would not affect the war effort to inflict this embarrassment and it might do good by indicating the notion that before another international conference is called there ought to be some clear conception of what it could and should do.

KNOWLEDGE of this situation is the cause of considerable nervous strain among those into whose lap the conference has been pitched. These gentlemen are laboring hard to evolve an agenda that will appear impressive and devise resolutions that will make the conference seem worth-while. Perhaps, they will succeed. Every effort will be made to keep it from appearing that the delegates arriving here from foreign countries found nothing concrete awaiting them and took nothing concrete away. Perhaps, these officials will be successful in preserving the illusion that they are on top of the conference instead of the conference being on top of them. Perhaps, they can do this if the Government is the sole agency to gather and distribute the "news." But, certainly, they cannot do so if the opportunity to get at the truth is afforded the unsanitized reporters.

CONSIDERING ALL these things, it is easy to understand why the President and his aides who have to handle the job are eager to keep the press away and bottle up the facts. It is easy to understand why they would like to do this, but it is not easy to understand why they think they will be able to do it. Soon or late the truth is bound to come out and the futility of trying to cover up incompetency through suppression will be made clear. The whole business is a reflection not so much upon the character of the Administration as upon its intelligence.

Miss Carrie Worthington
Is Wed To Harold A. Coon

At a marriage ceremony performed in Bristol Methodist Church on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock, Miss Carrie S. Worthington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis M. Worthington, 561 Swain street, became the bride of Mr. Harold A. Coon, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Coon, 322 Jefferson avenue.

The Rev. W. E. Preston Haas, pastor of the church, officiated at the ceremony. A recital of appropriate organ selections was played prior to the ceremony by Mrs. N. E. Reed, of Scranton, a sister of the groom. These included "Melody of Love" (H. Engelmann), and "Meditation" (C. F. Morrison). Mrs. Reed also played the bridal march by Lohengrin as the former Miss Worthington was escorted to the altar by her father, Miss Charlotte Rathke, Pond St., a cousin of the bride, was vocalist for the occasion. Her selections were "I Love You Truly" and "Because," and during the ceremony she sang "The Lord's Prayer" (Malotte).

Three young women attended the bride, they being inclusive of: Miss Dorothy Worthington, Swain street, sister of the bride, as maid of honor; Miss Agnes Shipman, Phillipsburg, N. J., and Miss Dorothy Cichon, Clifton, N. J., as bridesmaids.

Mr. Coon had as his best man his brother, Mr. Raymond Coon, of Cleveland, O.; and the ushers were Messrs. Lewis M. Worthington, Jr., Swain street, brother of the bride; and Nicholas Reed, Scranton, a brother-in-law of the groom.

The bridal costume was an attractive gown of white marquisette, en-train. Pearl bead trim was featured at the high neck-line, and the long sleeves were cut full. A tiara of pearls held a finger-tip veil of net, and she wore white slippers. Her bouquet was composed of mixed white flowers.

The trio of attendants of the bride also wore marquisette. Miss Dorothy Worthington wore a pink gown, floor length, it having short puffed sleeves, and high neckline. Slippers were of silver, and her pink net bonnet tied under the chin. Miss Shipman wore blue and Miss Cichon chose yellow. The bridesmaids' gowns had sweet-heart necklines, and three-quarter sleeves. Their bonnets, tying under the chin, matched the respective costumes. Miss Shipman wore silver slippers and Miss Cichon gold tone. All three carried mixed spring flowers.

Following a reception at the Worthington residence, Mr. Coon and bride left for a short trip. The bride wore for the journey a poudre blue suit with luggage tan accessories. They will reside in an apartment on Jefferson avenue.

Mr. Coon, a graduate of Bristol high school, is employed by Rohm & Haas Company. Mrs. Coon, also a graduate of Bristol high school, and of Rider College, Trenton, N. J., is a member of the faculty of the public schools at Bernardsville, N. J.

THE 2ND WAR LOAN DRIVE IS ON!

Come on,
Let's WIN this war!

IF we should lose the war, life would not be worth living.

"But we won't lose it," you may say.

Listen, brother—in this world nothing's sure, unless you make it so.

This month it's up to us here at home to do our part, and then some, to make Victory surer—and quicker! To do it, we've got to lend Uncle Sam 13 billion extra dollars.

It isn't easy—but war isn't easy and Victory isn't cheap. It takes money—and more money—to buy planes, ships, tanks, guns and a million other things our boys must have to deliver that final, paralyzing knockout punch.

And it's a whale of a lot easier for us at home to lend our money than for our boys to fight through the hardships and dangers of deserts, swamps, jungles, ice-fields and sub-infested seas!

Just think! Every extra bond you buy will help provide the weapons to save the lives of many American boys! Isn't that alone worth every effort, every economy you can make? You bet it is!

There are 7 types of U. S. Government securities to meet the needs of every purse. They offer the finest investment in the world—liberal interest, plus security guaranteed by Uncle Sam himself.

A volunteer worker for the 2nd War Loan Drive may visit you soon. Welcome this unselfish patriot—and buy all the bonds you can. But don't wait for that call. Go—today—to your bank, investment dealer, broker, post office or bond booth and invest to your uttermost limit. Even if it hurts, it's nothing compared to the agonizing impact of a bayonet thrust, a flesh-tearing torpedo fragment or a bone-crushing bullet.

KICK IN PANTS STARTED DODDS ON HIS WAY TO TRACK FAME

By John Cashman
(I. N. S. Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Apr. 19—(INS)—The lightning-paced career of Gil Dodds, master of the mile run, was started by a kick in the pants he received as a result of being too slow to elude it.

This ignoble beginning took place when Gil was a youngster of 13. He was sitting on a bank of Pony Creek, just outside of Falls City, Neb., after fishing for hours and never catching so much as a minnow. As he hunched disgustedly beside his idle rod, he flipped a pebble at an automobile passing on the nearby road.

It was done out of idleness more than anything else, but the driver failed to recognize anything but the fact that he had to catch the culprit. The irate driver hopped out of the car and started in pursuit of Gil. The youngster wasn't scared; he had done plenty of running during his grammar school days, and he was certain he could out-sprint the old codger.

Gil dashed madly for the Nehama river, about a hundred yards away, planning to outsmart the gaffer by swimming across and leaving his pursuer stranded on the bank. But the old boy, running with awkward stride and astonishing alacrity, collared Gil at the bank of the river and delivered unto him a kick in the seat of his pants that almost made the boy's teeth pop out of his head.

It was in this way that Gil was kicked along the road to track fame. The man who delivered that ignoble boot was Lloyd Hahn, one-time holder of five world records and one of the greater figures in American track. Hahn was through with active competition in racing, and had left coach Jack Ryder and the Boston A. A. to return to his home in Nebraska.

Hahn took an immediate interest in Dodds. When Gil was attending Falls City High School, he received pointers from Hahn, and when Gil matriculated at Ashland College in Ohio, Hahn continued his coaching by correspondence.

Ashland didn't have much of a track, and its track team consisted of one man—Dodds. Most of Dodds' preparation for his ill-fated Milrose four years ago consisted in shovelling snow off the track so he could run on it. The athletically orphaned runner was no great shakes as a college miler; his best mile was 4:13, and his best two mile run was 9:14.4, both good but not brilliant.

Upon graduating, Dodds was advised by Hahn to place himself under Jack Ryder, Hahn's old coach. Gil took the 1,000-mile trip to Boston, and turned in to Ryder. In the phenomenally short time of eight weeks he was a star, with an indoor two-mile performance surpassed only by Greg Rice.

In the first major mile race Dodds ever ran in his life, he upset the seemingly unbeatable Les MacMillen in the stirring time of 4:08.1. In the Wanamaker mile, at the opening of this winter season, he placed just a few miles behind Earl Mitchell, after setting a blistering pace at the three-quarter mark. He lost again in Boston in the race Frank Dixon, the great Negro miler, took for his own.

Dodds hit his stride in the Baxter Mile in the New York A. C. more recently, running up a big lead, as usual, but saving enough of it this time to win by 15 yards. Again he lost, when Dixon won his second mile of the season at the A. A. U. meet in Madison Square Garden.

FLEETWINGS EMPLOYEES TO PLAY SOFTBALL

Construction of two playing fields for Fleetwings softball leagues was begun last week at the Bristol aircraft factory. Plant Two, on Bloomsdale road.

The two diamonds will be located just beyond the office building on the same side of the road. Backstops already have been erected and surfacing of the fields is expected to be completed soon.

Meanwhile plans are being made for the formation of five softball leagues, three for men and two for women, comprised of employees from both day and night shifts. Early indications are that 40 or 50 teams will compete in regularly scheduled games.

activities the number of cases is fewer, the costs of service per case are greater. Donations of food and other supplies are less frequent, due to rationing; those purchased cost more. It's a constant struggle to make ends meet.

"But the War Work of The Salvation Army has expanded far beyond expectations. Twelve mobile canteens and four stationary canteen club cars are operated. These units serve over 200,000 men monthly. Every night, on two trips—seven to midnight, midnight to dawn—the Red Shield mobile canteens serve the grateful men of our armed forces along the water fronts and at other stations in and around Philadelphia. Each week, 10,000 doughnuts, 1,000 pounds of coffee, reams of writing paper, and other things men want, are distributed free because your donations make it possible.

"The Red Shield Servicemen's Center operates 24 hours per day and provides sleeping accommodations for 300 men, laundry, showers, entertainment and numerous personal services. The Philadelphia area of The Salvation Army would like to provide two Red Shield huts and a mobile canteen for overseas service. It is now helping to equip chapels, day rooms, offices and recreational rooms for men in uniform everywhere.

"Veterans of the first World War will remember how well The Salvation Army served them and how efficiently it spent its money. It is doing the same in this war. A Salvation Army caravan followed Montgomery from Cairo to Gabes. Wherever our forces are, there you will find The Salvation Army. Here's your chance to help the 'Army' carry on for this war's fighting men and boys. Ask your friends to make a contribution. Send it in with yours, or have them send it direct, to Newtown Title & Trust Co., or Quakertown National Bank.

War Bond Drive Here Reaches Total of $400,000

"While the realization of this amount is gratifying it is still not enough, for we as Americans know it will take every cent we can raise to win this war," stated Mrs. John Leslie Kilcoyne, chairman of the bond drive for the lower Bucks County district. Solicitors in the drive call attention of the public to the fact that war stamps and bonds can be purchased at local theatres.

The second war loan drive finds the McCrory store again taking an active part in promotion of sales of war stamps and bonds in Bristol. Last July a booth was officially opened with ceremonies fitting to the occasion, and since then a large amount of bonds and stamps has been purchased through its operation.

Now with a group of women headed by Mrs. Kilcoyne as chairman, carrying on a promotion of the $13,000,000, 000 nation-wide second war loan drive, McCrory's has turned over their entire bond and stamp selling facilities to this group, to aid in the work. The booth has been enlarged and appropriate signs put in place to draw attention of the public. McCrory has turned over their sales women's lounge room on the second floor for any group meetings that the committee may have.

To further help with the sale of bonds McCrory's is contributing one day's sales to the purchase of war bonds. The McCrory company is doing this the nation over wherever it has stores. This will be a sizeable amount as the stores extend down the coast to Florida and west to the Mississippi, with many stores located in Texas and Oklahoma.

SPORTS ODDITIES

By Ed Barrow
(President New York Yankees)
As told to Sid Mercer
I. N. S. Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Apr. 19—(INS)—Honus Wagner figured in two of the funniest incidents I can recall in my fifty years in baseball. I had Wagner playing almost every position on my Paterson club in the old Atlantic League in the nineties. On this particular day he was stationed on first base. Honus slipped his glove into his right hand and reached into his left hip pocket for a chew of scrap.

When he closed that big ham of a fist around the tobacco he couldn't get his hand out of the pocket. With his free hand he signaled Sam McMackin, our pitcher, to hold up a minute. But McMackin turned the ball loose and the batter hit a grounder to short. The shortstop heaved the ball over to Honus who was still trying to extricate his hand from the pocket.

The glove was in his right hand but not on the hand. I don't know how Honus made the bare-handed catch but he did for the third out without dropping the glove. He was still stuck when he came to the bench and we had to rip open to free him.

Honus Catches Torpedo

The other incident also has Honus as the central figure. The Paterson team played three games in Wilmington on July 4, 1896—one in the morning, one in the afternoon and one at night under poor lights. Denny Long, Wilmington owner, persuaded us to play what I believe was the first night baseball game. It didn't please the fans.

That morning before we went to the park I was window shopping at a fireworks store. I saw a torpedo as big as a baseball—one of those round things covered with thick white paper that makes a loud explosion when hurled at a hard object.

I slipped it to Doc Amola, the Wilmington pitcher, in the fifth inning and told him to throw it to Warner. The resulting explosion was terrific. Some of the gravel from the torpedo flew clear over to our dugout. Honus was mad. He started for Amola and Amola started for an exit.

A noisy fan who had been hollering "take" all through the game sicked the crowd on us. With the mob at our heels we got back to our hotel safely with the gate receipts in a satchel. That was my first and I hope my last night game.

President St. Louis Cardinals
(As Told to Sid Mercer, I. N. S. Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Apr. 19—(INS)—I believe the greatest play I have ever seen—certainly the one that gave me the biggest thrill—was Terry Moore's capture of Joe DiMaggio's wicked fly in the third game of the World Series last fall at the Yankee Stadium.

Maybe there have been other catches that were just as difficult but this one was made in the clutch and to complete it Moore risked a mad collision with Stan Musial.

Get the picture. The Cardinal kids were up against the great Yankees. The series was tied at one game each when we went to New York. The third game is always reckoned as most important if it can give the winner a 2 to 1 bulge. Most managers gamble heavily on it.

Ernie White pitched a shutout that day. He had to for the Yankees were on the beam and Spud Chandler was delivering the most effective brand of pitching the Cardinals saw in the series. Going into the last half of the sixth inning the score was 1 to 0.

With two out Cullenbine singled. DiMaggio drove a low fly to left center. It looked like a sure hit. Both Moore and Musial started after it as Cullenbine tore around the bases with what looked like the tying run. I was fearful that both Moore and Musial might be crippled in a bone-breaking collision that would insure DiMaggio's score also.

But at the last moment Musial dived out of Moore's way and Terry reached out for a gloved-hand catch. He was fully extended and ran quite a way before he could slow down.

If the ball had got away both runs would have scored. We would have had only three innings to get back that run and that would have been a bleak prospect the way Chandler was pitching. He held the Cardinals to three hits in eight innings before he was taken out for a pinch hitter.

It would have been tough to get that one run back from Chandler. We did score once off Breuer in the ninth to ease White's burden.

If the Yankees had won that game there's no telling what might have happened. They lost it and also the last two games. That's why I still feel Moore's catch was the greatest play I have ever seen.

now are serving in North Africa. Yesterday's air activity across the English Channel was followed up as soon as day broke today. RAF planes streaked towards France at dawn, presaging further assaults on the French invasion coast.

The raid on Italy was preceded by attacks by Ventura bombers, escorted by British fighting planes, on the French coastal city of Dieppe, and raids on Axis airfields at Poix, France, and Courtrai, Belgium, by British fighter-bombers. In a raid on 15 Axis ships off the Dutch coast, one vessel was left listing and ablaze and others were damaged when attacked by RAF Beaufighters.

Hit-and-run Nazi raiders over England were driven off by anti-aircraft fire before they could reach the London area.

In the North African theatre, at least two ships of an Axis convoy escorted by destroyers were blasted in the Gulf of Tunis by Allied motor torpedo boats, dive-bombers and torpedo planes. Mateur, last town on the road

In addition, the Lasebala airport northwest of Tunis and the Lamarsa and Djedeida airfields were attacked by medium bombers.

Twelve enemy planes were shot down in combat over Tunisia during the day and a formation of Flying Fortresses and Lockheed Lightnings downed 17 Axis aircraft over Palermo, Sicily, where the dock area was effectively bombed. Dock installations at Ferryville, adjacent to Bizerte, were battered by other Fortresses.

On the ground, the British First Army pressed forward from Djebel and towards Tenboubra, which is only 18 miles from Tunis. According to the Algiers radio, British advance units now are within 25 miles of the Tunisian capital.

Elsewhere on the North African front, the Allied High Command said, ground activity was limited to patrols.

In Russia, freshly reinforced German forces, repulsed seven times in attacks on Soviet positions in the Kuban area, unleashed new and stronger assaults. They broke through in one sector, only to be thrown back with heavy losses.

A Reuter's report from Moscow said the enemy lost 6,000 troops in the Kuban Theater without gaining a foot of ground in the last three days. A Russian communique said the Germans lost 1,400 officers and men yesterday alone as the Nazis strove to hold their last foothold in the Caucasus.

Elsewhere on the Russian front, the Soviets captured an important position south of Izum, and silenced ten Nazi artillery batteries and six mortar emplacements in a bitter artillery fight south of Lake Ilmen.

In the Southwest Pacific, Allied airmen attacked a 10,000-ton ship in the harbor of Kavieng, New Ireland, and bombed Japanese airdromes at Cape Gloucester, New Britain, and Finschhafen, New Guinea. A twin-engined Jap fighter plane was shot down in the Vitiaz Strait, north of New Guinea's Huon Peninsula, Gen. Douglas MacArthur also announced.
